

January 2008

Sun	Mon	Tue	Wed	Thu	Fri	Sat
		1 	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
27	28	29	30	31

CELEBRATING CENTENARIANS

*Clarence A. Weinandy,
"Andy" is 100
this month!*

In World War II
Andy served in the
Army as a lieutenant.

Clarence Weinandy, "Andy" as he is known to all, celebrates his 100th birthday this month. Andy still lives in his home and he still drives to the grocery store, to see his doctor and attend church weekly. He is physically active and works out early each morning. Andy will tell you, however, that he's not there to build muscle, just to keep the blood flowing.

Keeping himself up to date, Andy doesn't seem to be intimidated by technology. About a year ago, he purchased a computer, specifically a Dell computer. He also bought an extended warranty for four years. Imagine learning the computer at age 99. It's really quite remarkable for a man who was born at a time when the primary means of transportation was the horse-drawn carriage.

You can read more about Andy and his fascinating life at www.adlercentenarians.org.