CELEBRATING CENTENARIANS

Marvin Knudson, 100

Marvin Knudson is still learning. Not only is he computer proficient, he also uses Skype (an Internet phone service) to stay in touch with his sons and grandchildren as far away as Alaska! All were in attendance for his 100th birthday celebration.

Marvin Knudson celebrated his 100th birthday with family and friends on September 1st. His has been a remarkable life thus far, filled with experiences that have both challenged and enriched his life. Overcoming a difficult-at-best childhood, Marvin graduated from college, achieved a Master's degree and then embarked on a career as a community college innovator and president, a career which spanned some 70 years.

More about Marvin's fascinating life can be found at: www.adlercentenarians.org.
